

Emergency Plan Tips

If there is an emergency while you're in your dorm, you should have a plan of action to ensure you're safe.

Here are some things to consider when developing your plan:

Where you store your processors at night

Are they accessible if you need to leave quickly? Do you have a flashlight or battery operated light near your bed so you can find your processors if there is a power outage?

What to put in your emergency kit

Do you have a small bag with a few essential things (emergency kit) that you can grab if you need to evacuate quickly? If you have a spare processor, you may want to keep it in your emergency kit.

When you should evacuate your dorm building and where you should go

Do you know where you're supposed to go if there is a fire, hurricane, tornado, or earthquake?

How to communicate during emergencies

It is often noisy during emergency situations. How will you communicate with the people around you if it is difficult to hear anyone over various alarms? What if you don't have your processors?
