

Student Meeting

When you meet or have a meal with a current college student with cochlear implants or hearing loss, you should chat with them to find out about the types of accommodations he/she uses and what it's like being a student with hearing loss on campus.

Here are a list of questions to get you started:

1. Are faculty members accessible and supportive (i.e. providing accommodations, answering questions)?
2. How satisfied are you with accommodations/support from the Office of Disability Services?
3. Are there special clubs or organizations on campus for students with hearing loss?
4. What do you wish you had known when you made the transition from high school to college?
